CHED defied; tuition hikes highest ever

By Bianca Reyes

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — The Commission on Higher Education (CHED) has defied a Supreme Court ruling to cap tuition hikes.

CHED has approved tuition hikes for private universities that are the highest in the country's history.

The hikes range from 10 to 20 percent, with some schools reaching as high as 25 percent. CHED says the hikes are necessary to cover the cost of rising expenses.

The hikes have caused outrage among students and parents, who say they cannot afford the new rates.

CHED has defended the hikes, saying they are necessary to maintain the quality of education.

The hikes have also caused a drop in enrollment at some schools.

CHED has said it will continue to monitor the situation and may take further action if necessary.

Figure 1 shows a 3D molecular model of the 12S-12S complex. The structure is composed of two subunits, each consisting of a beta-barrel domain (shaded gray) and a C-terminal domain (shaded white). The subunits are arranged in a dimeric fashion, with the beta-barrel domains interacting at the interface. The C-terminal domains are flexible and extend away from the interface. The model is shown in a perspective view, with the subunits labeled 1 and 2. The beta-barrel domains are labeled with Greek letters alpha, beta, gamma, delta, epsilon, and zeta. The C-terminal domains are labeled with Greek letters eta, theta, and iota. The model is shown in a perspective view, with the subunits labeled 1 and 2. Figure 1 is a line graph showing the effect of the concentration of the inhibitor on the rate of polymerization. The x-axis is labeled "Concentration of inhibitor (mole/l)" and ranges from 0 to 0.001. The y-axis is labeled "Rate of polymerization (mole/l·hr)" and ranges from 0 to 0.001. There are three curves labeled I, II, and III. Curve I is the highest, followed by II, and then III. All curves show a decrease in the rate of polymerization as the concentration of the inhibitor increases.

No basis yet for Senate probe on tape—Drilon

By Staff Writers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. Drilon says there is no basis for a Senate probe into the audio tape that linked a former chief of the Philadelphia Police Department to a controversial 1980s-era police officer.

Drilon, a Democrat from New Jersey, said he was not convinced the tape was authentic. He said he had not yet seen the tape and that he was not sure it was a recording of a conversation between the two men.

The tape, which was played on the radio, was said to be a conversation between a man who identified himself as "John" and a woman who identified herself as "Mary". The man was said to be a former chief of the Philadelphia Police Department, and the woman was said to be a police officer.

Drilon said he was not sure if the tape was a recording of a conversation between the two men, or if it was a recording of a conversation between the man and someone else.

Deep-cleaning in Boracay

By Mike Lopez
Boracay Reporter

With 100,000 tourists every year, Boracay is a popular vacation spot. But it's also a place where the environment is under constant threat. The island's beaches are littered with plastic waste, and the coral reefs are being destroyed by tourists' careless actions.

The Boracay Foundation, a local environmental organization, is working to clean up the island. They have organized several beach cleanups and are now launching a deep-cleaning project.

The project will involve removing all the trash and debris from the island's beaches. This will help to protect the environment and make Boracay a more attractive destination for tourists.

The foundation is asking for volunteers to help with the project. They want people of all ages to participate. The cleanups will be held on a regular basis, and the foundation will provide all the necessary equipment and supplies.

The foundation is also launching a campaign to educate tourists about the importance of keeping the beaches clean. They are distributing brochures and posters, and they are encouraging tourists to use recycling bins and to avoid littering.
